

The educational platform is now available

We are pleased to inform you that our educational platform is now available to all adult educators, career counselors, as well as low-skilled adults that want to build their competencies and increase their employability prospects.

The partnership of the OVERCOME project has created a digital platform with training courses aiming to build both the skills of career counselors and adult educators to better support low-skilled adults, and the competencies of the latter to increase their employability prospects and psychological capital. You can access the platform here: <https://elearning.overcome-project.com/>

Currently, we are planning a pilot of the training courses.

Additionally, we have created a toolkit for low-skilled adults to develop their psychological capital. You can find the toolkit on the project website: <https://www.overcome-project.com/>
